

JENNY.

When Jenny was a wee thing,
And tottled o'er the floor,
And used to hide my little gifts
In doll sized pinfold.

Miss Jenny was't proud,
Would kiss the grizzly pig,
That through her dusky eye-glass now
She only sees to quail.

When Jenny was a wee thing,
And stood beside my knee,
I taught her many a lesson
Of that friend we cannot see.

And taught her, lowly kneeling,
To lift her heart in prayer
To Him who hath the humblest
Forever in his care.

Then Jenny was a wee thing,
She's tall and stately now,
And only deigns in Grace Church
Her contrite knee to bow.

And 'tis no vulgar leech,
Must bind Miss Jenny's prayers,
She likes religion handsome
To match the dress she wears.

When Jenny was a wee thing,
Her heart was warm and true,
But now she looks at feeling,
And truth is pure too.

And Jenny is quite different
From the Jean beloved of yore;
The little curly, laughing thing
I fondled is no more.

But there's a haughty lady
That rules the world of pride,
And thinks to walk the golden streets
On the patrician side.

GLEANINGS.

IRISH REASONING.—An Irishman asked an itinerant poultryer the price of a pair of fowls. "Six shillings, sir." "In my dear country, my darling, you might buy them for sixpence a pace." "Why don't you remain in your dear country, then?" "Case we have no sixpences, my jewel," said Pat.

CURE FOR DIVORCE.—Michelet, in his remarkable book L'Amour, mentions the following novel method of curing the disposition in married couples to become separated: "In Zurich, in the olden time, when a quarrelsome couple applied for a divorce, the magistrate never listened to them. Before deciding upon the case he locked them up in the same room for three days, with one bed, one table, one plate and tumbler. Their food was passed in to them by attendants, who neither saw nor spoke to them. When they came out, at the end of the three days, neither of them wanted to be divorced."

COMMUNION WITH THE GREAT.—In making a judicious selection of books we at once secure the best products of the best minds that have ever adorned the temple of knowledge. Who would not esteem it a great, a most felicitous privilege to pass a few hours with Homer, Cicero, Bacon, Shakspeare, Franklin or Washington, or any of their illustrious compeers. But that pleasure is now, an impossibility, still we may at any time stretch out our hand and take one of their volumes from the shelf, in which the best thoughts of the particular author in hand, are embodied in their most eloquent sublime words—amarantine flowers of poetry and the most lofty flights of creative imagination are before us, all sparkling with Castilian dews. As we become absorbed in the writings of those men who have received the stamp of true greatness, from that merciless critic "time," we feel our souls expanding, our mortal cares are forgotten, our moral weaknesses and besetting sins, with all their various hues and shades, are calmed and subdued. Passion is stripped of its heated, pernicious surroundings, and our hearts are allowed to bask and smile beneath the purifying influences of truth and beauty.

NO BRAINS.—Governor Trumbull of Connecticut, on the occasion of a grand riot, ascended a block, and attempted by a speech to quiet the people, when a missile hitting him on the head, felled him to the ground. He was badly hurt, and as his friends were carrying him home, his wife met him at the door, and exclaimed:—"Why, my husband, they have knocked your brains out." No, they haven't," said the Governor; "if I had any brains, I shouldn't have gone there."

POPULAR MORALITY.—The popular prosperity depends very much upon the popular morality. It is for a people to determine for themselves what they shall be, and what they shall become. Soil, climate, fortune, go but a small distance, comparatively speaking, in obtaining or securing eminence, happiness, or permanence to any nation. Vainly would the patriot strive, and the sage counsel, and the soldier fight, if a people are neither true to themselves, nor active in their proper purposes. In their own hearts and hands lie the secret of their moral, their social and their political successes, and the labor which is taken for them, in which they do not share, is so much labor thrown away. Even Hercules, a god, could only assist those who were first prepared, and willing to put their own shoulders to the wheel.

TALKATIVENESS.—Men have very little reason to reproach women with talkativeness. We have seldom or ever happened to be in promiscuous society in which the men did not assume the privilege, not only of leading the conversation, but of taking all the talk to themselves, and young ladies will sit for hours listening to stupid discussions without uttering a word, and without learning any other lesson of wisdom than that which they practice, of saying nothing.

THE ERUPTION OF VESUVIUS.—Vesuvius is still in a state of eruption, the lava having now reached a point three miles from the crater. The present mouth was opened 18 months ago, by a violent earthquake, the cinders from which were carried as far as Constantinople—another proof of the great eastern current. The lava now issues from the base of the cone, passes down the valley below Piano delle Ginestre, and falls into the great ravine known as the Sasso-Grande, 250 feet deep by 1,000 feet broad, which is now completely filled. Below this it cuts across the carriage road in three places, destroys about twenty houses and some olive groves and vineyards, and is now near the Cemetery of Portici, whose inhabitants are full of apprehension. It is estimated that 28,000,000 cubic yards of lava have issued from the crater during this eruption. The temperature of the lava is 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit. The guides have provided themselves with molds in which they cast medallion heads of the King and Queen of Naples, Louis Napoleon, Queen Victoria, Victor Emanuel, Czar Alexander, and even Mazzini, Murat, and Garibaldi.

VARIETIES.

To succeed, you must keep moving; to grow rich, you must keep saving.

"Bobby, why don't you go home and have your mother sew up that hole in your trousers?" "Oh, go along, old woman, our folks are economical, and a hole will last longer than a patch."

A man has no more right to say an unkind thing, than to act one; no more right to say a rude thing to another, than to knock him down.

Let a man do his work; the fruit of it is the care of another than his.

Stranger:—Will you keep an eye on my horse, my lad, while I step in and take a drink? Boy:—Yes, sir. (Stranger goes in, gets his drink, comes out, and finds his horse missing.) Stranger:—Where's my horse? Boy:—He's run away, sir. Stranger:—Didn't I tell you to take care of him, you young rascal? Boy:—You told me to keep my eye on him, and I did, till he got clean out of sight.

"Dad, if I was to see a duck on the wing, and was to shoot it, would you lick me?" "O, no, my son; it shows you are a good marksman, and I would feel proud of you." "Well, then, I plumped our old drake as he was flyin' over the fence to-day, and it would have done you good to see him drop."

A city belle is like a steamboat—she has always a swell after her.

The best capital to begin life on, is a capital wife.

"What branch of education do you have chiefly in your school?" "A willow branch, sir; the master has used most a willow tree."

An editor down in North Carolina says he is so poor, that when two dimes meet in his pocket he introduces them, they are such strangers.

"Mr. S., is your customer B. a man to be trusted?" "I know of none more so. He is to be trusted forever, he never pays."

Before you commit suicide, take a cool bath. What people term despair, is often dirt.

All faults are pardonable when one has the courage to avow them.

Happiness and unhappiness are qualities of mind, not of place or position, and the cause of one's happiness may be the occasion of another's want of it.

ORIGINS OF THE WORD LADY.—Formerly, when the affluent lived all the year round at their mansions in the country, the Lady of the Manor distributed to her poor neighbors, with her own hands, once a week or oftener, a certain quantity of bread, and she was called by them the "Laff day," that is, in Saxon, the "bread giver." Those two words were in time corrupted, and the meaning is as little known as the practice which gave rise to it.

Too Bad.—Mrs. Antoinette L. Brown Blackwell preached to Theodore Parker's congregation, Boston, recently.—There was nearly a "mutter" manufactured by the young people, when she read her text as follows: "When I was a child, I spoke as a child, understood as a child, I thought as a child; but when I became a man, I put away childish things."

The following slanderous paragraph goes on, rebuked: A wag has invented a new telegraph. He proposes to place a line of women fifty steps apart, and commit the news to the first of them as a secret.

A BEAUTIFUL IDEA.—It has been beautifully remarked that a woman's heart is the only true place for man's likeness. An instant gives the impression, and an age of sorrow and change cannot efface it.

At a late celebration the following "dry" toast was given, (the author of which got buttered when he got home): "The press—the pulpit—the politicians: the three ruling powers of the day. The first spreads knowledge—the second spreads morals—the third spreads considerably."
